ABOUT THE TUTOR

“I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made. Wonderful are your works; my soul knows it very well. “(Psalm 139:4) One of the best blessings I have ever received from God was being able to stay home and homeschool my five children from kindergarten all the way through high school. It has had so many rewards, but it has also had many challenges. One of the challenges was teaching my dyslexic children to read.

Not all children learn the same. Each of us is fashioned differently by God. What may click for one child and bring that “aha” moment doesn’t necessarily work for another child. When my oldest three had moved on to college and I had two in high school, I took a part time job as a reading tutor. I was trained in the Orton-Gillingham approach, a highly effective, internationally accredited program for struggling learners. Through this multisensory method, I saw amazing success with each of my students. It was so rewarding to see the light bulb turn on and see first-hand the success of this approach. I am blessed to be part of God’s calling to teach children how to read, opening up a world of opportunities for them. I can’t wait to meet my new students, teach them these techniques, and watch them grow in their reading, writing, and spelling.

When not working at Koinonia, you might find me at the local library privately tutoring students in reading. I am a Certified Dyslexic Practitioner with the International Dyslexia Association and a Certified Academic Language Practitioner with the Academic Language Therapy Association. I also hold a Bachelor of Arts from Calvin College.
