CLASSES TUTORED

English II (American Literature)

ABOUT THE TUTOR

A family joke has been that my grandparents' home was held up by their bookshelves. Having inherited their love of books, I enjoy passing that enthusiasm for reading on to my two boys. One of the highlights of our evening routine is relaxing together with a good story.

In addition to my love of books, I also love to teach. I have taught English as a Second Language classes, and homeschool classes in science, history, British literature, and American literature. On my way to graduating with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English Language from the University of British Columbia, I also took many history and literature classes. This education prepared me for these teaching opportunities.

Another opportunity I have had is to act as a proofreader for a local editor. It was very rewarding to be able to work with words, helping others to express their ideas in a clear and precise way.

I am excited to begin another year teaching at Koinonia, and look forward to sharing my love of literature and learning with my students!
